

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

sional credentials of the applicant and the annual dues to the Corresponding Secretary, who shall present them at the first meeting of the Executive Committee following their receipt. The Executive Committee shall publish the names as "candidates for membership before the Executive Committee" upon the notice of the next meeting of the Association, and after due publication and investigation the Executive Committee shall order the names of all candidates to be elected to membership printed upon the notices of the following stated meeting of the Association, when a majority of the members voting shall be necessary to elect.

SECTION 3.—Each member who has regularly qualified by paying the current dues and assessments shall be entitled to receive a certificate of membership. A candidate not elected shall have his annual dues returned.

SECTION 4.—All communications received by the Executive Committee which relate to the character and standing of candidates, shall be treated by the Committee as confidential.

SECTION 5.—There shall be no election of candidates for membership at the annual meeting.

SECTION 6.—All resignations shall be sent to the Corresponding Secretary in writing, and referred by him to the Executive Committee. If accepted by the Association, the member by this act severs all connection with the Association and relinquishes all right and title to any share in its property and shall return his certificate of membership to the Corresponding Secretary when demanded by the Executive Committee.

SECTION 7.—Application for reinstatement to membership shall be governed by Section 2 of this Article.

ARTICLE III.

OFFICERS AND ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

SECTION 1.—The officers of this Association shall be: 1st, President; 2d, 1st Vice-President; 3d, 2d Vice-President; 4th, Recording Secretary; 5th, Corresponding Secretary; 6th, Treasurer; 7th, Executive Committee—consisting of the titular officers of the Association, together with three additional members to be elected by the Association, one to serve for one year, one for two years, and one for three years, and thereafter the term shall be three years.

SECTION 2.—The titular officers of this Association and three members of the Executive Committee shall be elected by ballot at the annual meeting in January, 1899, to serve till the annual meeting in June, 1900, except two members of the Executive Committee who are elected for the 1901 and 1902 terms. The titular officers shall, after June 1900, serve for one year or until their successors have qualified by accepting the office.

SECTION 3.—The retiring titular Officers and the Executive Committee shall, without delay, transfer all moneys, books and other property of the Association to the newly elected officers and Executive Committee and take their receipt therefor at the first meeting of the Executive Committee after the annual meeting.

SECTION 4.—Nominations for officers and for member or members of the Executive Committee, shall be made at the stated meeting immediately preceding each annual meeting of the Association. The Recording Secretary shall send to each member, with the notices of the annual meeting, two ballots with the names of all the nominees printed thereon.

SECTION 5.—All officers and members of the Executive Committee shall be voted for upon one blanket ballot, and a majority of the votes cast shall be necessary to elect.

SECTION 6.—The poll for the annual election shall remain open for one hour, or until every member present at the meeting has had an opportunity to vote, after which the poll shall be declared by the President to be closed and no additional votes shall be received.

SECTION 7.—At the close of the poll, the Inspectors of Election shall immediately proceed to canvass the votes, and then report the result to the President, who shall announce it to the Association. If it should appear that no choice has been made for one or more officers, the balloting shall be repeated until all the officers and the members of the Executive Committee shall be elected. At the second and succeeding ballots, the name of a candidate having had the least number of votes shall be withdrawn.

SECTION 8.—Ballots folded in each other, blank votes, and ballots containing more than one name for any office, shall be rejected by the Inspectors.

SECTION 9.—The Executive Committee shall fill, till the next annual election, all the vacancies in the elective offices of the Association except the offices of President and Vice-President, which shall be filled as provided in Art. IV., Sec. II.

ARTICLE IV.

DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

SECTION 1.—It shall be the duty of the President to preside at all meetings of the Association and of the Executive Committee. He shall appoint the Standing Committees on Medical Charities and Public Health, Ethics and Discipline and Legislation, to serve for one year or until their successors are appointed, and all Special Committees when not otherwise ordered. He shall call special meetings of the Association at the written request of fifteen members. He shall call special meetings of the Executive Committee at the written request of five of its members. At the annual meeting, he shall appoint three Inspectors of Election. He shall sign all official documents, execute all laws of the Association, but shall not sign any warrant on the Treasurer unless an appropriation has been previously made by the Executive Committee, and the appropriation, except for current expenses, must first be approved by the Association. He shall perform such other duties as usually pertain to his office.

SECTION 2.—The 1st Vice-President shall in the absence, disability, or at the request of the President, perform the duties of the President. In the absence or disability of the 1st Vice-President the 2nd Vice-President shall perform the duties of the 1st Vice-President.

SECTION 3.—The Recording Secretary shall keep accurate minutes of the meetings of the Association ; shall issue all notices of meetings ; notify candidates of their election ; and members of their appointment on committees, and as delegates. He shall have ballots printed with the names of all nominees for office and shall send two ballots to each member, with notice of the annual meeting, and perform such other duties as usually pertain to the office.

SECTION 4.—The Corresponding Secretary shall conduct the official correspondence of the Association not mentioned in the duties of the Recording Secretary ; shall preserve all such correspondence, including copies of official letters written by him. He shall act as Secretary of the Executive Committee. He shall read the monthly report of the Executive Committee, at the subsequent stated meeting, of the Association and the yearly statistical report at the annual meeting, and perform duties described in article II.

SECTION 5.—The Treasurer shall collect all moneys due the Association, and deposit and invest same in accordance with the order of the Executive Committee. He shall pay out no money except on orders of the Executive Committee, countersigned by the President. He shall notify all members of their arrears, keep proper books of account which shall at all times be open for examination by the Executive Committee. He shall report to the Executive Committee at its monthly meeting, his receipts and expenditures for the current month, and, at the annual meeting, he shall report in full to the Association the condition of its finances and shall read the names of all members whose dues and assessments for the current year are not paid.

SECTION 6.—The Executive Committee for all legal purposes shall be trustees of this Association and shall file the Annual report.

ARTICLE V.

DUTIES OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

SECTION 1.—The Committee shall hold regular meetings at not more than twelve, or less than five days before each stated meeting of the Association, and shall hold special meetings when called by the President.

SECTION 2.—Five members of the Executive Committee shall constitute a quorum.

SECTION 3.—A member absent from three consecutive meetings of the Executive Committee without valid excuse shall have his office declared vacant by a majority vote of the Committee if approved by the Association.

SECTION 4.—The Committee shall make all arrangements for the meetings of the Association, and the President, with the aid of the Committee, shall prepare the programme for the scientific sessions.

SECTION 5.—The Committee as Trustees shall be the custodians of all the property of the Association and shall authorize all deposits and investments of the funds of the Association ; shall order all current expenses to be paid by the Treasurer, on warrants signed by the President. All other appropriations of money ordered by the Executive Committee, shall first be submitted to a meeting of the Association for approval.

SECTION 6.—At each meeting of the Association, the Executive Committee shall report to the Association through the Corresponding Secretary. The report of the Executive Committee may be in part or as a whole accepted or recommitted with instructions by a majority vote of the members present at any meeting of the Association.

ARTICLE VI.

STANDING COMMITTEE ON MEDICAL CHARITIES AND PUBLIC HEALTH.

SECTION 1.—The President shall appoint a standing committee on Medical Charities and Public Health consisting of five members.

SECTION 2.—It shall be the duty of the Committee to investigate and report to the Association on all matters relating to the abuse of medical charities, including all grievances against the medical and managing boards of hospitals and dispensaries and on all matters relating to public health.

ARTICLE VII.

STANDING COMMITTEE ON ETHICS AND DISCIPLINE.

SECTION 1.—The President shall appoint a standing committee on ethics and discipline consisting of five members.

SECTION 2.—In all questions of Ethics, the Association shall be governed by the Code of Ethics of the American Medical Association.

SECTION 3.—The Committee on Ethics shall receive all complaints against a member who is accused of violation of Code of Ethics of the American Medical Association or the By-Laws of this Association or other flagrant breach of professional etiquette, and may order any complaint to be put in writing and signed by the member or members complaining. If after due investigation they decide the charge or charges cannot be sustained the Committee shall have power to reject them and shall notify the accuser of their decision and report to the Executive Committee. The accuser may appeal to the Executive Committee, and its decision on the appeal shall be final. If either Committee finds the charge or charges properly substantiated the accused shall be summoned before the Executive Committee without delay and the notice shall contain a copy of the charge or charges against him. They shall also notify the accusing member or members to be present, and the Committee on Ethics shall prosecute the accused before the Executive Committee who shall hear the evidence and pass judgment upon the accused, which decision shall be reported to the Association at the meeting next succeeding for action.

SECTION 4.—There shall be three degrees of discipline, viz.: Censure, Suspension, and Expulsion.

SECTION 5.—Any member disobeying the summons of the Committee on Ethics or Executive Committee without valid excuse, may be disciplined by a vote of the majority of the members at any meeting.

SECTION 6.—Charges brought against any member of the Executive Committee shall be governed by Section 4 of this Article, excepting that the Association, instead of the Executive Committee, shall hear the evidence and pass judgment.

ARTICLE VIII.

STANDING COMMITTEE ON LEGISLATION.

SECTION 1.—The President shall appoint a Standing Committee on Legislation, consisting of five members.

SECTION 2.—The duties of the Committee shall be to investigate and report to the Association on all matters relating to Medical Legislation which they deem necessary to be brought to the attention of the Association, and are empowered to confer with other similar Committees from other medical bodies.

ARTICLE IX.

DELEGATES.

SECTION 1.—All delegates from this Association shall be appointed by the President.

SECTION 2.—Delegates in their representative capacity shall obey the instructions of this Association.

ARTICLE X.

ANNUAL MEETING.

SECTION 1.—An Annual meeting shall be held on the third Monday in January, 1899, and in 1900 and thereafter on the third Monday in June, at 8 P. M.

SECTION 2.—The order of business for the Annual meeting may be suspended or changed, for the purpose of facilitating the election, by a majority of the members voting.

SECTION 3.—Order of Business of the Annual Meeting :—

- I. Reading of the minutes of the previous stated meeting.
- II. Appointment by the President of three Inspectors of election and the declaration by the President that the Poll is open for one hour for election of officers and members of Executive Committee, as provided in Article III.

- III. Report of the Executive Committee, except on candidates for membership.
- IV. Report of Treasurer.
- V. Report of Corresponding Secretary.
- VI. Report of Recording Secretary.
- VII. Report of Standing Committees.
- VIII. Report of Special Committees.
- IX. Unfinished business.
- X. New business.
- XI. Adjournment.

The regular order of business may proceed during the election and canvassing of the votes.

ARTICLE XI.

STATED MEETINGS.

SECTION 1.—Stated Meetings of this Association shall take place on the third Monday in February, March, April, May, June, October, November and December of each year at 8 P. M., and in 1900 and thereafter in January instead of June.

SECTION 2.—The following shall be the order of business for the stated meetings.

- I. Calling the meeting to order in Scientific Session.
- II. Presentation of Specimens and Cases, not later than nine o'clock.
- III. Scientific programme with general discussion.
- IV. Executive session.
Reading the minutes of the previous meeting to begin at 10:30 P. M.
- V. Reports of the Executive Committee, including report of Treasurer and on candidates for election to membership.

- VI. Reports of Standing Committees.
- VII. Reports of Special Committees.
- VIII. Unfinished business.
- IX. New business.
- X. Adjournment.

ARTICLE XII.

SPECIAL MEETINGS.

The President shall call special meetings as provided by Art. iv., Sec. 1. The business stated in the call for a special meeting shall be the only business transacted at that meeting.

ARTICLE XIII.

DUES AND ASSESSMENTS.

SECTION 1.—The annual dues shall be two dollars payable in advance.

SECTION 2.—The dues of members elected during the three months prior to the annual meeting shall begin with the annual meeting following the date of their election.

SECTION 3.—The Executive Committee may with the approval of the Association, make assessments upon members not to exceed three dollars for any one year.

SECTION 4.—Members who are in arrears for dues and assessments for one or more years shall not hold any office or be entitled to vote.

SECTION 5.—The Treasurer shall send a copy of this section of the By-Laws to all members who are in arrears for two years and shall present their names to the Executive Committee, and the Association may expel them from membership upon the recommendation of the Executive Committee.

ARTICLE XIV.

RULES OF ORDER.

RULE 1.—Fifteen members shall constitute a quorum in executive session ; but a meeting may be called to order in scientific session when a quorum is not present.

RULE 2.—In the absence of the President and Vice-Presidents, the meeting may elect any member present to act as President pro tempore.

RULE 3.—When a motion is under debate, no motion shall be received except a motion to adjourn, to lay on the table, for the previous question, to postpone, to refer, or to amend, which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are enumerated in this roll.

RULE 4.—Motions to adjourn, to lay on the table, and for the previous question, shall be decided without debate.

RULE 5.—During the scientific sessions, a motion to go into executive session shall be in order, and such motion shall be decided without debate.

RULE 6.—Every member present at a meeting shall vote on all questions in executive session, unless excused from voting by the President with the consent of the Association.

RULE 7.—The ayes and nays on any question, when called for by five members present, shall be decided without debate and fully recorded in the minutes.

RULE 8.—No member shall have the right to speak on the question under consideration more than five minutes except by permission of the Association.

RULE 9.—Cushing's Manual shall govern all questions of Parliamentary Law not mentioned in these By-Laws.

ARTICLE XV.

The Code of Ethics of the American Medical Association are adopted as part of these By-Laws.

ARTICLE XVI.

AMENDMENTS.

Amendments, alterations or additions to these By-Laws may be made by a two-thirds' vote of the members voting at an annual meeting, or at any stated meeting ; provided that notice of such amendments, alterations or additions shall have been presented in writing at the meeting immediately preceding, and that a copy of such amendments, alterations or additions shall have been sent to each member, with the notice for the meeting at which they are to be considered.

Signed,

Committee : { E. ELIOT HARRIS,

CODE OF MEDICAL ETHICS
OF THE DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS TO THEIR PATIENTS, AND OF THE OBLIGATIONS OF PATIENTS TO THEIR PHYSICIANS.

ARTICLE I.—DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS TO THEIR PATIENTS.

SECTION 1.—A physician should not only be ever ready to obey the calls of the sick, but his mind ought also to be imbued with the greatness of his mission and the responsibility he habitually incurs in its discharge. These obligations are the more deep and enduring, because there is no tribunal other than his own conscience to adjudge penalties for carelessness or neglect. Physicians should, therefore, minister to the sick with due impressions of the importance of their office, reflecting that the ease, the health and the lives of those committed to their charge depend on their skill, attention and fidelity. They should study also in their deportment so to unite tenderness with firmness, and condescension with authority, as to inspire the minds of their patients with gratitude, respect and confidence.

SECTION 2.—Every case committed to the charge of a physician should be treated with attention, steadiness and humanity. Reasonable indulgence should be granted to the mental imbecility and caprices of the sick. Secrecy and delicacy, when required by peculiar circumstances, should be strictly observed ; and the familiar and confidential intercourse to which physicians are admitted in their professional visits should be used with discretion and with the most scrupulous regard and fidelity and honor. The obligation of secrecy extends beyond the period of professional services ; none of the privacies of personal and domestic life, no infirmity of disposition or flaw of character observed during professional attendance should ever be divulged by the physician except when he is imperatively required to do so. The force and necessity of this obligation are indeed so great that professional men have, under certain circumstances been protected in their observance of secrecy by courts of justice.

SECTION 3.—Frequent visits to the sick are in general requisite, since they enable the physician to arrive at a more perfect knowledge of the disease—to meet promptly every change which may occur and also tend to preserve the confidence of the patient. But unnecessary visits are to be avoided, as they give useless anxiety to the patient, tend to diminish the authority of the physician, and render him liable to be suspected of interested motives.

SECTION 4.—A physician should not be forward to make gloomy prognostications, because they savor of empiricism by magnifying the importance of his services in the treatment or cure of the disease. But he should not fail, on proper occasions, to give to the friends of the patient timely notices of danger when it really occurs, and even to the patient himself, if absolutely necessary. This office, however, is so peculiarly alarming when executed by him, that it ought to be declined whenever it can be assigned to any other person of sufficient judgment and delicacy. For the physician should be the minister of hope and comfort to the sick, that, by such cordials to the drooping spirit, he may smooth the bed of death, revive expiring life, and counteract the depressing influence of those maladies which often disturb the tranquility of the most resigned in their last moments. The life of a sick person can be shortened not only by the acts, but also by the words or the manner of the physician. It is, therefore, a sacred duty to guard himself carefully in this respect, and to avoid all things which have a tendency to discourage the patient and to depress his spirits.

SECTION 5.—A physician ought not to abandon a patient because the case is deemed incurable; for his attendance may continue to be highly useful to the patient and comforting to the relatives around him, even in the last period of a fatal malady, by alleviating pain and other symptoms and by soothing mental anguish. To decline attendance, under such circumstances, would be sacrificing to fanciful delicacy and mistaken liberality that moral duty which is independent of, and superior to, all pecuniary consideration.

SECTION 6.—Consultations should be promoted in difficult or protracted cases, as they give rise to confidence, energy and more enlarged views in practice.

SECTION 7.—The opportunity which a physician not unfrequently enjoys of promoting and strengthening the good resolutions of his patients, suffering under the consequences of vicious conduct, ought never to be neglected. His counsels, or even remonstrances, will give satisfaction, not offense, if they be proffered with politeness and evince a genuine love of virtue, accompanied by a sincere interest in the welfare of the person to whom they are addressed.

ARTICLE II.—OBLIGATIONS OF PATIENTS TO THEIR PHYSICIANS.

SECTION 1.—The members of the medical profession, upon whom is enjoined the performance of so many important and arduous duties toward the community, and who are required to make so many sacrifices of comfort, ease and health, for the welfare of those who avail themselves of their services certainly have a right to expect and require that their patients should entertain a just sense of the duties which they owe to their medical attendants.

SECTION 2.—The first duty of a patient is to select as his medical adviser one who has received a regular professional education. In no trade or occupation do mankind rely on the skill of an untaught artist, and in medicine, confessedly the most difficult and intricate of the sciences, the world ought not to suppose that knowledge is intuitive.

SECTION 3.—Patients should prefer a physician whose habits of life are regular, and who is not devoted to company, pleasure or to any pursuit incompatible with his professional obligations. A patient should also confide the care of himself and family, as much as possible, to one physician; for a medical man who has become acquainted with the peculiarities of constitution, habits and predispositions of those he attends, is more likely to be successful in this treatment than one who does not possess that knowledge

A patient who has thus selected his physician should always apply for advice in what may appear to him trivial cases, for the most fatal results often supervene on the slightest accidents. It is of still more importance that he should apply for assistance in the forming stage of violent diseases; it is to a neglect of this precept that medicine owes much of the uncertainty and imperfection with which it has been reproached.

SECTION 4.—Patients should faithfully and unreservedly communicate to their physician the supposed cause of their disease. This is the more important, as many diseases of a mental origin simulate those depending on external causes and yet are only to be cured by ministering to the mind diseased. A patient should never be afraid of thus making his physician his friend and adviser ; he should always bear in mind that a medical man is under the strongest obligations of secrecy. Even the female sex should never allow feelings of shame or delicacy to prevent their disclosing the seat, symptoms and causes of complaints peculiar to them. However commendable a modest reserve may be in the common occurrences of life, its strict observance in medicine is often attended with the most serious consequences, and a patient may sink under a painful and loathsome disease which might have been readily prevented had timely intimation been given to the physician.

SECTION 5.—A patient should never weary his physician with a tedious detail of events or matters not appertaining to his diseases. Even as relates to his actual symptoms, he will convey much more real information by giving clear answers to interrogatories than by the most minute account of his own framing. Neither should he obtrude upon his physician the details of his business nor the history of his family concerns.

SECTION 6.—The obedience of a patient to the prescriptions of his physician should be prompt and implicit. He should never permit his own crude opinions as to their fitness to influence his attention to them. A failure in one particular may render an otherwise judicious treatment dangerous, and even fatal. This remark is equally applicable to diet, drink and exercise. As patients become convalescent they are very apt to suppose that the rules prescribed for them may be disregarded, and the consequence, but too often, is a relapse. Patients should never allow themselves to be persuaded to take any medicine whatever that may be recommended to them by the self-constituted doctors and doctresses who are so frequently met with, and who pretend to possess infallible remedies for the cure of every disease. However simple some of their prescriptions may appear to be, it often happens that they are productive of much mischief, and in all cases they are injurious, by contravening the plan of treatment adopted by the physician.

SECTION 7.—A patient should, if possible, avoid even the friendly visits of a physician who is not attending him—and when he does receive them, he should never converse on the subject of his disease, as an observation may be made, without any intention of interference, which may destroy his confidence in the course he is pursuing, and induce him to neglect the directions prescribed to him. A patient should never send for a consulting physician without the express consent of his own medical attendant. It is of great importance that physicians should act in concert; for although their modes of treatment may be attended with equal success when applied singly, yet conjointly they are very likely to be productive of disastrous results.

SECTION 8.—When a patient wishes to dismiss his physician, justice and common courtesy require that he should declare his reasons for so doing.

SECTION 9.—Patients should always, when practicable, send for their physician in the morning, before his usual hour of going out; for, by being early aware of the visits he has to pay during the day, the physician is able to apportion his time in such a manner as to prevent an interference of engagements. Patients should also avoid calling on their medical adviser unnecessarily during the hours devoted to meals or sleep. They should always be in readiness to receive the visits of their physician, as the detention of a few minutes is often of serious inconvenience to him.

SECTION 10.—A patient should, after his recovery, entertain a just and endearing sense of the value of the services rendered him by his physician ; for these are of such a character, that no mere pecuniary acknowledgment can repay or cancel them.

OF THE DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS TO EACH OTHER AND TO THE PROFESSION AT LARGE.

ARTICLE I.—DUTIES FOR THE SUPPORT OF PROFESSIONAL CHARACTER.

SECTION 1.—Every individual on entering the profession, as he becomes thereby entitled to all its privileges and immunities, incurs an obligation to exert his best abilities to maintain its dignity and honor, to exalt its standing, and to extend the bounds of its usefulness. He should, therefore, observe strictly such laws as are instituted for the government of its members ; should avoid all contumelious and sarcastic remarks relative to the faculty as a body ; and while, by unweared diligence, he resorts to every honorable means of enriching the science, he should entertain a due respect for his seniors, who have, by their labors, brought it to the elevated condition in which he finds it.

SECTION 2.—It is not in accord with the interests of the public or the honor of the profession that any physician or medical teacher should examine or sign diplomas or certificates of proficiency for, or otherwise be specially concerned with, the graduation of persons whom they have good reason to believe intend to support and practice any exclusive and irregular system of medicine.

SECTION 3.—There is no profession from the members of which greater purity of character and a higher standard of moral excellence are required than the medical ; and to attain such eminence is a duty every physician owes alike to his profession and to his patients. It is due to the latter, as without it he cannot command their respect and confidence, and to both, because no scientific attainments can compensate for the want of correct moral principles. It is also incumbent upon the faculty to be temperate in all things, for the practice of physics requires the unremitting exercise of a clear and vigorous understanding, and on emergencies, for which no professional man should be unprepared, a steady hand, an acute eye and an unclouded head may be essential to the well-being, and even to the life, of a fellow-creature.

SECTION 4.—It is derogatory to the dignity of the profession to resort to public advertisements, or private cards, or hand-bills, inviting the attention of individuals affected with particular diseases—publicly offering advice and medicine to the poor gratis, or promising radical cures ; or to publish cases and operations in the daily prints, or suffer such publications to be made ; to invite laymen to be present at operations ; to boast of cures and remedies ; to adduce certificates of skill and success, or to perform any other similar acts. These are the ordinary practices of empirics, and are highly reprehensible in a regular physician.

SECTION 5.—Equally derogatory to professional character is it for a physician to hold a patent for any surgical instrument or medicine, or to dispense a secret nostrum, whether it be the composition or exclusive property of himself or of others. For, if such nostrum be of real efficacy, any concealment regarding it is inconsistent with beneficence and professional liberality ; and if mystery alone give it value and importance, such craft implies either disgraceful ignorance or fraudulent avarice. It is also reprehensible for physicians to give certificates attesting the efficacy of patent or secret medicines, or in any way to promote the use of them.

ARTICLE II.—PROFESSIONAL SERVICES OF PHYSICIANS TO EACH OTHER.

SECTION I.—All practitioners of medicine, their wives, and their children while under the paternal care, are entitled to the gratuitous services of any one or more of the faculty residing near them, whose assistance may be desired. A physician afflicted with disease is usually an incompetent judge of his own case, and the natural anxiety and solicitude which he experiences at the sickness of a wife, a child, or any one who, by the ties of consanguinity, is rendered peculiarly dear to him, tend to obscure his judgment and produce timidity and irresolution in his practice. Under such circumstances, medical men are peculiarly dependent upon each other, and kind offices and professional aid should always be cheerfully and gratuitously afforded. Visits ought not, however, to be obtruded officiously, as such unasked civility may give rise to embarrassment or interfere with that choice on which confidence depends. But if a distant member of the faculty, whose circumstances are affluent, request attendance, and an honorarium be offered, it should not be declined; for no pecuniary obligation ought to be imposed, which the party receiving it would wish not to incur.

ARTICLE III.—OF THE DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS AS RESPECTS VICARIOUS OFFICES.

SECTION I.—The affairs of life, the pursuit of health, and the various accidents and contingencies to which a medical man is peculiarly exposed, sometimes require him temporarily to withdraw from his duties to his patients, and to request some of his professional brethren to officiate for him. Compliance with this request is an act of courtesy, which should always be performed with the utmost consideration for the interest and character of the family physician, and when exercised for a short period all the pecuniary obligations for such services should be awarded to him. But if a member of the profession neglect his business in quest of pleasure and amusement, he cannot be considered as entitled to the advantages of the frequent and long continued exercise of this fraternal courtesy, without awarding to the physician who officiates the fees arising from the discharge of his professional duties.

In obstetrical and important surgical cases, which give rise to unusual fatigue, anxiety and responsibility, it is just that the fees accruing therefrom should be awarded to the physician who officiates.

ARTICLE IV.—OF THE DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS IN REGARD TO CONSULTATIONS.

SECTION 1.—A regular medical education furnishes the only presumptive evidence of professional abilities and acquirements, and ought to be the only acknowledged right of an individual to the exercise and honors of his profession. Nevertheless, as in consultations the good of the patient is the sole object in view, and this is often dependent on personal confidence, no intelligent regular practitioner, who has a license to practice from some medical board of known and acknowledged respectability, recognized by the ASSOCIATION, and who is in good moral and professional standing in the place in which he resides, should be fastidiously excluded from fellowship, or his aid refused in consultation, when it is requested by the patient. But no one can be considered as a regular practitioner or a fit associate in consultation whose practice is based on an exclusive dogma, to the rejection of the accumulated experience of the profession, and of the aids actually furnished by anatomy, physiology, pathology and organic chemistry.

SECTION 2.—In consultations, no rivalship or jealousy should be indulged; candor, probity and all due respect should be exercised toward the physician having charge of the case.

SECTION 3.—In consultations the attending physician should be the first to propose the necessary questions to the sick, after which the consulting physician should have the opportunity to make such further inquiries of the patient as may be necessary to satisfy him of the true character of the case. Both physicians should then retire to a private place for deliberation, and the one first in attendance should communicate the directions agreed upon to the patient or his friends, as well as any opinion which it may be thought proper to express. But no statement or discussion of it should take place before the patient or his friends, except in the presence of all the faculty attending, and by their common consent; and no opinions or prognostications should be delivered which are not the result of previous deliberation and concurrence.

SECTION 4.—In consultations, the physician in attendance should deliver his opinion first, and when there are several consulting, they should deliver their opinions in the order in which they have been called. No decision, however, should restrain the attending physician from making such variations in the mode of treatment as any subsequent unexpected change in the character of the case may demand. But such variation, and the reasons for it, ought to be carefully detailed at the next meeting in consultation. The same privilege belongs also to the consulting physician if he is sent for in an emergency, when the regular attendant is out of the way, and similar explanations must be made by him at the next consultation.

SECTION 5.—The utmost punctuality should be observed in the visits of physicians when they are to hold consultations together, and this is generally practicable, for society has been considerate enough to allow the plea of a professional engagement to take precedence of all others, and to be an ample reason for the relinquishment of any present occupation. But as professional engagements may sometimes interfere and delay one of the parties, the physician who first arrives should wait for his associate a reasonable period, after which the consultation should be considered as postponed to a new appointment. If it be the attending physician who is present, he will, of course, see the patient and prescribe; but if it be the consulting one, he should retire, except in case of emergency, or when he has been called from a considerable distance, in which latter case he may examine the patient, and give his opinion in writing and under seal, to be delivered to his associate.

SECTION 6.—In consultations, theoretical discussions should be avoided, as occasioning perplexity and loss of time. For there may be much adversity of opinion concerning speculative points, with perfect agreement in those modes of practice which are founded, not on hypothesis, but on experience and observation.

SECTION 7.—All discussions in consultation should be held as secret and confidential. Neither by words nor manner should any of the parties to a consultation assert or insinuate that any part of the treatment pursued did not receive his assent. The responsibility must be equally divided between the medical attendants—they must equally share the credit of success as well as the blame of failure.

SECTION 8.—Should an irreconcilable diversity of opinion occur when several physicians are called upon to consult together, the opinion of the majority should be considered as decisive; but if the numbers be equal on each side, then the discussion should rest with the attending physician. It may, moreover, sometimes happen that two physicians can not agree in their views of the nature of a case and the treatment to be pursued. This is a circumstance much to be deplored, and should always be avoided, if possible, by mutual concessions as far as they can be justified by a conscientious regard for the dictates of judgment. But in the event of its occurrence a third physician should, if practicable, be called to act as umpire, and, if circumstances prevent the adoption of this course, it must be left to the patient to select the physician in whom he is most willing to confide. But, as every physician relies upon the rectitude of his judgment, he should, when left in the minority, politely and consistently retire from any further deliberation in the consultation or participation in the management of the case.

SECTION 9.—As circumstances sometimes occur to render a special consultation desirable, when the continued attendance of two physicians might be objectionable to the patient, the member of the faculty whose assistance is required in such cases should sedulously guard against all future unsolicited attendance. As such consultations require an extraordinary portion of both time and attention, at least a double honorarium may be reasonably expected.

SECTION 10.—A physician who is called upon to consult, should observe the most honorable and scrupulous regard for the character and standing of the practitioner in attendance; the practice of the latter, if necessary, should be justified as far as can be, consistently with a conscientious regard for truth, and no hint or insinuation should be thrown out which could impair the confidence reposed in him, or affect his reputation. The consulting physician should also carefully refrain from any of those extraordinary attentions or assiduities which are too often practiced by the dishonest for the base purpose of gaining applause, or ingratiating themselves into the favor of families and individuals.

ARTICLE V.—DUTIES OF PHYSICIANS IN CASES OF INTERFERENCE.

SECTION 1.—Medicine is a liberal profession, and those admitted into its ranks should found their expectations of practice upon the extent of their qualifications ; not on intrigue or artifice.

SECTION 2.—A physician, in his intercourse with a patient under the care of another practitioner, should observe the strictest caution and reserve. No meddling inquiries should be made—no disingenuous hints given relative to the nature and treatment of his disorder; nor any course of conduct pursued that may directly or indirectly tend to diminish the trust reposed in the physician employed.

SECTION 3.—The same circumspection and reserve should be observed when, from motives of business or friendship, a physician is prompted to visit an individual who is under the direction of another practitioner. Indeed, such visits should be avoided, except under peculiar circumstances, and when they are made, no particular inquiries should be instituted relative to the nature of the disease or the remedies employed, but the topics of conversation should be as foreign to the case as circumstances will admit.

SECTION 4.—A physician ought not to take charge of or prescribe for a patient who has recently been under the care of another member of the faculty in the same illness, except in cases of sudden emergency, or in consultation with the physician previously in attendance, or when the latter has relinquished the case, or been regularly notified that his services are no longer desired. Under such circumstances, no unjust and illiberal insinuations should be thrown out in relation to the conduct or practice previously pursued, which should be justified as far as candor and regard for truth and probity will permit ; for it often happens that patients become dissatisfied when they do not experience immediate relief, and, as many diseases are naturally protracted, the want of success in the first stage of treatment affords no evidence of a lack of professional knowledge and skill.

SECTION 5.—When a physician is called to an urgent case, because the family attendant is not at hand, he ought, unless his assistance in consultation be desired, to resign the care of the patient to the latter immediately on his arrival.

SECTION 6.—It often happens in cases of sudden illness, or of recent accidents and injuries, owing to the alarm and anxiety of friends, that a number of physicians are simultaneously sent for. Under these circumstances, courtesy should assign the patient to the first who arrives, who should select from those present any additional assistance that he may deem necessary. In all such cases, however, the practitioner who officiates should request the family physician, if there be one, to be called, and, unless his further attendance be requested, should resign the case to the latter on his arrival.

SECTION 7.—When a physician is called to the patient of another practitioner, in consequence of the sickness or absence of the latter, he ought on the return or recovery of the regular attendant and with the consent of the patient, to surrender the case.

(The expression "patient of another practitioner" is understood to mean a patient who may have been under the charge of another practitioner at the time of the attack of sickness, or departure from home of the latter, or who may have called for his attendance during his absence or sickness, or in any other manner given it to be understood that he regarded the said physician as his regular medical attendant.)

SECTION 8.—A physician, when visiting a sick person in the country, may be desired to see a neighboring patient who is under the regular direction of another physician, in consequence of some sudden change or aggravation of symptoms. The conduct to be pursued on such an occasion is to give advice adapted to present circumstances ; to interfere no further than is absolutely necessary with the general plan of treatment ; to assume no future direction unless it be expressly desired, and, in this last case, to request an immediate consultation with the practitioner previously employed.

SECTION 9.—A wealthy physician should not give advice gratis to the affluent ; because his doing so is an injury to his professional brethren. The office of a physician can never be supported as an exclusively beneficent one, and it is defrauding, in some degree, the common funds for its support when fees are dispensed with which might justly be claimed.

SECTION 10.—When a physician who has been engaged to attend a case of midwifery is absent, another is sent for ; if delivery is accomplished during the attendance of the latter, he is entitled to fee, but should resign the patient to the practitioner first engaged.

ARTICLE VI.—OF DIFFERENCES BETWEEN PHYSICIANS.

SECTION 1.—Diversity of opinion and opposition of interest may, in the medical as in other professions, sometimes occasion controversy and even contention. Whenever such cases unfortunately occur and cannot be immediately terminated, they should be referred to the arbitration of a sufficient number of physicians or a court-medical.

SECTION 2.—As peculiar reserve must be maintained by physicians toward the public, in regard to professional matters, and as there exist numerous points in medical ethics and etiquette through which the feelings of medical men may be painfully assailed in their intercourse with each other, and which can not be understood or appreciated by general society, neither the subject matter of such differences nor the adjudication of the arbitrators should be made public, as publicity in a case of this nature may be personally injurious to the individuals concerned, and can hardly fail to bring discredit on the faculty.

ARTICLE VII.—OF PECUNIARY ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

Some general rules should be adopted by the faculty, in every town or district, relative to pecuniary acknowledgments from their patients, and it should be deemed a point of honor to adhere to these rules with as much uniformity as varying circumstances will admit.

OF THE DUTIES OF THE PROFESSION TO THE PUBLIC, AND OF THE OBLIGATIONS OF THE PUBLIC TO THE PROFESSION.

ARTICLE I.—DUTIES OF THE PROFESSION TO THE PUBLIC.

SECTION I.—As good citizens, it is the duty of physicians to be ever vigilant for the welfare of the community, and to bear their part in sustaining its institutions and burdens; they should also be ever ready to give counsel to the public in relation to matters especially appertaining to their profession, as on subjects of medical police, public hygiene and legal medicine. It is their province to enlighten the public in regard to quarantine regulations; the location, arrangement and dietaries of hospitals, asylums, schools, prisons, and similar institutions; in relation to the medical police of towns, as drainage, ventilation, etc.

and in regard to measures for the prevention of epidemic and contagious diseases ; and when pestilence prevails, it is their duty to face the danger, and to continue their labors for the alleviation of the suffering, even at the jeopardy of their own lives.

SECTION 2.—Medical men should also be always ready, when called on by the legally constituted authorities, to enlighten coroners' inquests and courts of justice on subjects strictly medical—such as involve questions relating to sanity, legitimacy, murder by poison or other violent means, and in regard to the various other subjects embraced in the science of Medical Jurisprudence. But in these cases, and especially where they are required to make a post-mortem examination, it is just, in consequence of the time, labor and skill required and the responsibility and risk they incur, that the public should award them a proper honorarium.

SECTION 3.—There is no profession by the members of which eleemosynary services are more liberally dispensed than the medical, but justice requires that some limits should be placed to the performance of such good offices. Poverty, professional brotherhood, and certain of the public duties referred to in the first section of this article, should always be recognized as presenting valid claims for gratuitous services ; but neither institutions endowed by the public or by rich individuals, societies for mutual benefit, for the insurance of lives or for analogous purposes, nor any profession or occupation, can be admitted to possess such privilege. Nor can it be justly expected of physicians to furnish certificates of inability to serve on juries, to perform militia duty, or to testify to the state of health of persons wishing to insure their lives, obtain pensions, or the like, without a pecuniary acknowledgment. But to individuals in indigent circumstances, such professional services should always be cheerfully and freely accorded.

SECTION 4.—It is the duty of physicians, who are frequent witnesses of the enormities committed by quackery, and the injury to health and even destruction of life caused by the use of quack medicines, to enlighten the public on these subjects, to expose the injuries sustained by the unwary from the devices and pretensions of artful empirics and imposters. Physicians ought to use all the influence which they may possess, as professors in Colleges of Pharmacy and by exercising their option in regard to the shops to which their prescriptions shall be sent, to discourage druggists and apothecaries from vending quack or street medicines or from being in any way engaged in their manufacture and sale.

ARTICLE II.—OBLIGATIONS OF THE PUBLIC TO PHYSICIANS.

SECTION 1.—The benefits accruing to the public, directly and indirectly, from the active and unwearied beneficence of the profession, are so numerous and important that physicians are justly entitled to the utmost consideration and respect from the community. The public ought likewise to entertain a just appreciation of medical qualifications; to make a proper discrimination between true science and the assumptions of ignorance and empiricism; to afford every encouragement and facility for the acquisition of medical education—and no longer to allow the statute books to exhibit the anomaly of exacting knowledge from physicians, under a liability to heavy penalties, and of making them obnoxious to punishment for resorting to the only means of obtaining it.

EXPLANATORY DECLARATIONS.

WHEREAS, Persistent misrepresentations have been and still are being made concerning certain provisions of the Code of Ethics of this ASSOCIATION, by which many in the community, and some in the ranks of the profession, are led to believe those provisions exclude persons from professional recognition simply because of differences of opinions or doctrines ; therefore,

1. Resolved, That clause first, of Art. IV., in the National Code of Medical Ethics, is not to be interpreted as excluding from professional fellowship, on the ground of differences in doctrine or belief, those who in other respects are entitled to be members of the regular medical profession. Neither is there any other article or clause of the said Code of Ethics that interferes with the exercise of the most perfect liberty of individual opinion and practice.

2. Resolved, That it constitutes a voluntary disconnection or withdrawal from the medical profession proper, to assume a name indicating to the public a sectarian, or exclusive system of practice, or to belong to an association or party antagonistic to the general medical profession.

3. Resolved, That there is no provision in the National Code of Medical Ethics in any wise inconsistent with the broadest dictates of humanity, and that the article of the Code which relates to consultations can not be correctly interpreted as interdicting, under any circumstances, the rendering of professional services whenever there is a pressing or immediate need of them. On the contrary, to meet the emergencies occasioned by disease or accident, and to give a helping hand to the distressed without unnecessary delay, is a duty fully enjoined on every member of the profession, both by the letter and the spirit of the entire code.

But no such emergencies or circumstances can make it necessary or proper to enter into formal professional consultations with those who have voluntarily disconnected themselves from the regular medical profession, in the manner indicated by the preceding resolution.

N. S. DAVIS of Chicago,
A. Y. P. GARNETT of Washington,
H. F. CAMPBELL of Augusta, Ga.,
AUSTIN FLINT of New York,
J. B. MURDOCK of Pittsburg.

On motion of Dr. Brodie, the resolutions were unanimously adopted.

On motion of Dr. Keller, it was unanimously agreed that the resolutions be added as an explanatory addendum in all future publications of the Code.

SUMMARY OF THE SCIENTIFIC WORK OF THE NEW YORK COUNTY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE YEAR 1897.

(The meeting of February 10, 1897, was devoted to the delivery of the President's Inaugural Address, the subject of which was The Abuse of Medical Charity. The Special Meeting of February 23d was devoted to a discussion of dispensary abuses, and was entirely executive.)

MEETING OF MARCH 15TH.

DR. A. E. GALLANT read a paper entitled "Balsam of Peru and Castor Oil as a Surgical Dressing in the Treatment of 26,000 Cases."

DR. W. W. VAN ARSDALE, in discussing the paper, spoke of the necessity of finding a surgical dressing which would be applicable to the requirements of dispensary practice, where the rules of aseptic surgery were often necessarily ignored. He had found this balsam dressing particularly suited to this class of cases. Its chief advantage was that it maintained free drainage at the same time that it promoted healing. The paper was also discussed by DRs. F. H. WIGGIN and VON DÖNHOFF.

DR. ROBERT NEWMAN read a paper on "The Results of Chemical Electrolysis versus Divulsion or Cutting, in the Treatment of Urethral Stricture." After giving an historical sketch of the introduction of the treatment by electrolysis and of his special instruments for this purpose, the reader of the paper exhibited a large and varied collection of these instruments, and illustrated the electrolytic action of the current by giving a demonstration of the way in which it would deposit iodine and copper in muscular and albuminous tissues.

The paper was discussed by DR. F. SCHAVOIR, of Stamford, Conn., and by DR. SAMUEL G. TRACY, supporting the ideas advanced by the reader of the paper.

A special discussion on "The Compulsory Inspection of Cases of Tuberculosis" had been arranged for this evening, and members of the Health Department invited to be present and participate. The discussion was opened by DR. GEORGE B. FOWLER, Health Commissioner. In endeavoring to justify the recent action of the Department in making it compulsory for physicians to report cases of tuberculosis, he called attention to the fact, that this action was not as sudden as many seemed to think, circulars concerning the contagiousness of this disease having been issued by the Health Department as far back as 1889. In 1895, a circular on the same subject had been published, in both the medical and lay press, and in 1896 another circular had been issued to physicians urgently requesting their co-operation in reporting all cases of tuberculosis coming under their observation. Arguments against the infectiousness of tuberculosis, and protests against this action of the Health Board were offered by DRs. J. BLAKE WHITE and LOUIS FISCHER.

MEETING OF APRIL 19TH.

Dr. JAMES J. CONCANNON read a paper on "The Treatment of Diphtheria in Private Practice by Antitoxin—A Comparison with Other Methods." After giving a resumé of the most favorable results to be expected from local and general medicinal treatment, he showed how great had been the success of the serum treatment of Behring in those severe cases of laryngeal diphtheria in which former methods of treatment would have almost certainly proved futile. Not only did the results already obtained with Antitoxin show that it rapidly antagonized the complex poison generated by the diphtheria bacilli, but that it had reduced the duration of the disease from weeks to days.

Dr. PHILOWER, of Nutley, N. J., opened the discussion by relating the history of an epidemic of diphtheria in which Antitoxin had given results far superior to those obtained by the usual methods of treatment hitherto employed.

Dr. A. RUPP pointed out certain errors likely to arise from a study of the statistics of the Antitoxin treatment, and expressed the belief that it was a very much over-estimated remedy.

Dr. SEIFERT read a detailed history of the introduction of the Antitoxin treatment in New York City, showing that unfair methods had been resorted to to deprive Behring of the honors which rightfully belonged to him.

Dr. ALEXANDER LAMBERT spoke of the desirability of using Antitoxin early, with a view of immunizing those elements of the blood not yet attacked by the diphtheritic toxin.

Dr. LOUIS FISCHER also spoke in favor of the use of Antitoxin, believing it to be the most reliable and successful treatment in our possession.

Dr. FRED C. VALENTINE presented a communication entitled "Urethroscopic Photographs," and by the aid of lantern views described the various divisions of the urethra and the nature and results of stricture. He also made an earnest plea for the more general use of the cystoscope and urethroscope.

Drs. CARL BECK and THOMAS H. MANLEY discussed the paper, and Dr. ROBERT NEWMAN exhibited representations of the male and female urethra taken twenty-five years ago.

Dr. S. F. BROTHERS exhibited some new devices by which one storage battery could be used for lighting and cautery work, and also for Galvanic and Faradic applications.

MEETING OF MAY 17TH.

Dr. LOUIS FISCHER read a paper on "The Treatment of Pertussis," in which he advised physicians to inquire carefully into the history of the patient and into the symptoms observed by night as well as by day. In this way he could best form an opinion whether the patient was in the catarrhal or convulsive stage. His treatment consisted in careful attention to the hygiene and general health of the patient, together with the use of local antiseptics and of antispasmodics.

Dr. S. H. DESSAU opened the discussion. He recommended fumigating the patient's room with sulphur or ammonia and the liberal use of the coal-tar products. Dr. F. J. QUINLAN discussed the differential diagnosis by relating several cases of convulsive cough simulating Pertussis, but cured by excision of enlarged tonsils.

Dr. H. B. DOUGLAS then read a paper on "Atrophic Rhinitis." He advised careful and persistent local cleansing, together with constitutional treatment. Dr. F. J. QUINLAN spoke of the various constitutional effects of the disease, and also of his favorable experience with oily applications and with electricity. Drs. CHAPPELL, HARRIS and CONCANNON continued the discussion.

MEETING OF JUNE 21ST.

Dr. MARK I. KNAPP read a paper entitled "The Bi-Parietal Diameter the Chief Symptom and Diagnostic Criterion of Tuberculosis." The author's contention was, that in tuberculous individuals the head is either triangular or has a narrow bi-parietal diameter. Drs. C. E. QUIMBY and J. J. CONCANNON discussed the paper.

DR. R. ABRAHAMS read a paper on "The Genital Phenomena of Renal Calculi," in which he described an inflammation of the testicles and epididymis, unassociated with venereal disease or traumatism, and which subsided quickly after a discharge of gravel, blood and mucus from the bladder. DRs. NEWMAN, T. H. MANLEY and L. B. BANGS took part in the discussion.

(The meeting of October 18th, was devoted to memorial addresses on two recently deceased members, DR. J. LEWIS SMITH by DR. JOHN SHRADY, and DR. WM. T. LUSK by DR. AUSTIN FLINT.)

MEETING OF NOVEMBER 15TH.

DR. SEYMOUR OPPENHEIMER read a paper entitled "A study of the Nares and Pharynx in a case of Haemophila." The case presented unusual difficulties in diagnosis, owing to the peculiar family history and symptomatology. The diagnosis indicated in the title of the paper had been arrived at only after a careful consideration of the causes of epistaxis, the usual seat of the lesions, and the necessity for excluding the complications of purpura and exophthalmic goitre which coexisted.

DR. F. J. QUINLAN, in opening the discussion, dwelt at length on the anatomy of the nasal passages, and the various reflex causes of epistaxis. DR. J. J. CONCANNON and GEORGE T. HARRISON spoke of the treatment of epistaxis, the former advocating cocainization and the galvano-cautery, and the latter warmly advocating the claims of the general practitioner as it is he who is first called to these cases, and then gave his own experience in the use of iodoform gauze packing.

DR. A. E. GALLANT reported "A case of very large Inguinal Hernia" which he had successfully operated upon, and spoke at length upon the striking and very satisfactory results that he had obtained from abdominal massage in seeming desperate cases of intestinal distention following laparotomy.

DR. FRED. C. VALENTINE exhibited some new and useful genito-urinary instruments.

MEETING OF DECEMBER 20TH.

DR. T. H. MANLEY presented a boy with "Necrosis of the Head of the Femur," and who had dragged out a miserable existence for a considerable time under hospital care. Dr. Manley being convinced that there was diseased bone present, cut down upon the inflamed area, and removed this bone, with the result of quickly restoring the boy to health, and with a useful limb having rotatory motion.

DR. MANLEY also exhibited a case in which he had successfully relieved a long-standing "Trigeminal Neuralgia by Resection of the Inferior Maxillary Nerve." The man had been completely relieved for three years, but there were now some indications of a return of the trouble, due probably to reunion of the nerve fibres.

DRS. VON DÖNHOFF, ROSE and GALLANT discussed these cases.

DRS. T. J. McGILLCUDDY read a paper entitled "Some remarks on Mechanico-therapeutics," in which he inveighed against the present tendency to relegate such procedures to lay operators and quacks, and insisted upon the far-reaching beneficial effects to be derived from scientific and skillfully applied mechanico-therapeutics. He claimed that no other method which would so quickly increase the breathing capacity and strengthen the cardiac pulsations.

DR. H. J. GARRIGUES, in opening the discussion, gave a brief historical sketch of the introduction of such treatment, and then dwelt upon its advantages and limitations, particularly as applied to the pelvic organs.

DR. S. BARUCH, in continuing the discussion, spoke of the rationale of hydro-therapy; DRs. H. N. VINEBERG, JULIUS ROSENBERG and T. H. MANLEY discussed pelvic massage; DR. ROSE spoke of the benefit to be derived from massage in chronic blepharitis, and DR. GALLANT dilated upon the great advantages of the massage treatment of sprains.

DR. A. E. GALLANT exhibited a specimen removed by secondary laparotomy representing the impervious stump of a fallopian tube, although no evidence of a ligature could be found in the surrounding tissue. Also a specimen showing an appendix which had collapsed, after a previous attack of inflammation, and abscess, and degenerated into a fibrous band.
